

G C Bm D
You left me for the weekend and I haven't seen you since
G C Bm D
My heart suggests you might return, but me it won't convince
C D G Em
I opened a bottle of wine for your return
C D G Em
Eagerly waiting, eventually concerned.
C D G Em
But your glass stood empty, as it does today
C D G
And I drank you away.

I wish I hadn't wasted all the energy and tears
What lasted only several months, it felt like several years
The good times were great, the bad were even worse
I took away my lessons, you left your grinning curse.
I raised my glass to you, who left, and choiceless me, who stayed
And I drank you away

I drank you away, I drank you away

The only thing for me to do from here is to move on
It feels so good to realize that finally you're gone
As time goes on the wounds will heal and pain will dissipate
Attitudes will change a lot and love will come from hate
Your empty glass is another's now and it seems to recall the day
When I drank you away
